OREGON PROF TO DISCUSS SAMPLING PROBLEM

MISSOULA, Mont.---

An Oregon state professor of statistics and forest management will present a seminar at the University of Montana School of Forestry Thursday at 3 p.m.

Dr. W. Scott Overton, an Oregon State University forestry professor, will discuss "Sampling Problems Associated With Quantitative Ecological Studies" in Forestry 201.

The public is invited to the seminar.

Dr. Overton will be available Friday (Feb. 21) to discuss specific statistical problems with individuals. Anyone wishing to meet with Dr. Overton is asked to make arrangements with Dr. George Blake at the School of Forestry, or call him at 243-4372 or 243-2211.
